

About Your State Forests

The Virginia Department of Forestry (VDOF) manages 22 State Forests and other state lands, totaling 67,920 acres.

State Forests are managed for multiple uses: water quality, recreation, forest products, wildlife and scenic beauty. The primary management goals of individual State Forests may vary, usually depending on the wishes of the donor of the land. Most State Forests are open to passive public uses, such as hiking and wildlife watching. Hunting, fishing, horseback riding, canoeing and biking are allowed on some forests. Some of the forests have unique historical features. Many of the forests are used for research. All of the State Forests are showcases for sound forest practices, demonstrating that forestland can be managed profitably without sacrificing its value to the environment.

The State Forests of Virginia are self-supporting and receive no taxpayer funds for operation. Operating funds are generated from the sale of forest products and use permits. In addition, up to 25 percent of the revenue received from the sale of forest products is returned to the counties in which the forests are located. You can support educational programs on your State Forests by donating a portion of your state tax refund to Virginia's State Forests Fund.

Did you know...

- That Charles Dickens wrote the inscription for the tombstone of Charles Irving Thornton at Cumberland State Forest?
- That the sandstone rock formation atop Channels State Forest in Washington and Russell counties is more than 400 million years old?
- That a portion of the Crawfords StateForest in New Kent County is an excellent example of a cypress forest?
- That from certain vantage points on the Sandy Point State Forest in King William County you can often see American Bald Eagles flying over the Mattaponi River?
- That there is a geo-cache tour available at the Appomattox-Buckingham StateForest?
